When Jesus went back to Galilee, the people welcomed him, not because of his words/teaching, but because of what they had seen him do – the signs (miracles) they had seen him perform. They were more interested in the signs (miracles) than believing his word or who he was.

An official came to Jesus to ask him to heal his son who was very sick. Jesus promised that the boy would live, and the official trusted Jesus' word. The official was different. When told that his son would be well, he believed (responded in faith) without needing further evidence. Later he received proof of what Jesus had done, but it was only after he took Jesus at his word. This was the second miraculous sign that Jesus performed.

Jesus always does what he says he will do, so we can trust his word just as the official did. True followers of Jesus will believe because of his words and not just what they see.
